

Cherry Tree!

The year 2010 has been a remarkable year for the colours and dramatic changes associated with the season of Autumn. In the rectory garden, our Cherry Tree became a startlingly yellow during the first week of November. On the west side of the house, all windows were bathed in this bright yellow which seeped through the house leaving the light enhanced and brightly coloured.

The photograph above was taken on All Saints' Day, 1st November and the one below on Thursday 4th November. Not only has the wind taken its toll of the leaves, depositing them on the grass beneath the tree, but the yellow of the leaves has turned to more of a brown colour.

Of course, if you are looking at these photographs on the pages of Magna, the effect will not be very clear. Just have a look on the parish website www.greenfordmagna.info for the full colour edition.

Some observers have remarked that the changes of the seasons have been reducing or running into each other more and more. Not this year. The Autumn has been wonderful, not too cold and so full of colour. I hope that you all enjoyed it too!

Neil Richardson

Cherry Tree!

The year 2010 has been a remarkable year for the colours and dramatic changes associated with the season of Autumn. In the rectory garden, our Cherry Tree became a startlingly yellow during the first week of November. On the west side of the house, all windows were bathed in this bright yellow which seeped through the house leaving the light enhanced and brightly coloured.

The photograph above was taken on All Saints' Day, 1st November and the one below on Thursday 4th November. Not only has the wind taken its toll of the leaves, depositing them on the grass beneath the tree, but the yellow of the leaves has turned to more of a brown colour.

Of course, if you are looking at these photographs on the pages of Magna, the effect will not be very clear. Just have a look on the parish website www.greenfordmagna.info for the full colour edition.

Some observers have remarked that the changes of the seasons have been reducing or running into each other more and more. Not this year. The Autumn has been wonderful, not too cold and so full of colour. I hope that you all enjoyed it too!

Neil Richardson

